

Future Skills

What skills will employers need in 2025 & how do we secure them?

A free breakfast workshop for employers, hosted by Greater Brighton Metropolitan College and the Institute for Employment Studies (IES)

Date 19th June 2018, (08:30-09:00 arrival) 09:00-10:30am

Venue Greater Brighton Metropolitan College, Gallery Restaurant,
Whitecross Street, Brighton, East Sussex, BN1 4DZ

Why you should attend

As the UK nears “full employment” many employers are experiencing skill shortages in business-critical occupations. On top of this, the jobs market is changing rapidly as a result of demographic and technological disruption. The growth in self-employment, the rise of the so-called “gig” economy, the uncertainty of Brexit all add to the potential headaches which employers in the South-East are facing.

The event will address the following questions:

- What skills will employers be looking for in the future?
- Is the workforce equipped to meet the changing demands of business and are education and training providers building a pipeline of skills over the next decade which will satisfy employers’ needs for vocational, technical, “soft” and interpersonal skills?
- Are education and training providers responsive enough to the needs of employers?

Book now!

This is a free event, so we expect demand to be high and spaces are limited. To secure your place, please book here:

<https://bit.ly/2wurXtq>

For more information, please contact:

✉ commercial@gbmc.ac.uk

🌐 www.gbmc.ac.uk

📍 Greater Brighton Metropolitan College, Gallery Restaurant,
Whitecross Street, Brighton, East Sussex, BN1 4DZ